SUMMARY

Full stack engineer who builds AI products end to end: the agent logic, the backend that serves it, and the interface people actually use. Takes products from an empty repository to production and keeps them running, working across Next.js and TypeScript on the client, Node and Python services behind it, and LLM orchestration, RAG and tool use in between. Has shipped a personalized learning platform, a desktop agent that drives a computer, an AI job-application platform, and a GitHub App used daily by real developers.
